A PERILOUS ADVENTURE.
A ship some time ago arrived at Bristol, after a successful Pacific whaling voyage. Time was when thousands of vessels tracked the great monsters in search of oil, but the discovery of the mineral article has made the trade no longer remunerative, or, at least, much less an object of pursuit. The ship referred to was the West Wind, commanded by Capt. Parker, who met with a most perilous adventure during his cruise, and which came very near costing him his life. Under the most favorable circumstances, the occupation of a whaler is one of great danger and physical trial, and very few ships ever return to port without losing one or more hands by the ordinary exigencies of the service.

It seems that Captain Parker was out from his ship with a boat's crew chasing a whale, and having fastened his harpoon to the creature it died, as usual, and the line coiled in the bows of the boat began to run out with lightning speed as the monster sunk to the extreme depth of the ocean. At this critical juncture Captain Parker went to the forward part of the boat to be sure that there was no twist in the rope to prevent its working clear. The line was running out with such rapidity as to cause smoke to arise from the woodwork of the boat, and the captain threw water, as is the custom, upon the spot. By some unlucky lurch of the boat he was ejected from his position, and he naturally fell out his left hand to prevent himself from falling, but in doing so he was unfortunately placed in such a position that he was overboard and out of sight in an instant.

He was perfectly conscious while he was tumbling down head for most and with an incredible swiftness, and it appeared to him that his arm would be torn from the socket, so great was the resistance of the water. During these awful moments he was well aware of his perilous situation, and that his only chance for life was to cut the line. But how could he do this? He could not move his right arm from his side, to which it was closely pressed by the force of the element through which he was being drawn. The pressure on his brain grew more and more terrible, and a roaring, as of thunder, sounded in his ears. He opened his eyes for a single instant, and it seemed as though a stream of fire was passing before them. And now came that inevitable attack of the brain which characterizes all such perilous situations where one's whole life seems to pass in review in an instant of time. But the captain was a very practical man, cool and courageous always, and consequently still self-possessed.

He began to struggle with all his muscular power to reach the knife which he wore in his belt. He felt that he was growing weaker every instant, and it was now or never with him, though he should say parenthetically, that what requires so long to describe occurred in time which were reckoned by seconds rather than minutes. Oh, if he could but command his right hand for one stroke upon that fatal line! Now his heart began to fail him. He did not absolutely despair, but his brain reeled, his nerves seemed to relax their tension, lightness and darkness appeared to alternate before his eyes, and his head felt as though compressed in an iron vice. Were these his last moments? He thought, in spite of the agonizing pain he endured, he would make one more brave effort.

The line providentially slackened for a second; he reached his knife, and, as quick as thought itself, as the rope became taut again, the keen edge of the blade was upon it, and by a desperate effort of his arm it became severed. He was freed, and then commenced his upward passage, caused by the natural buoyancy of the human body. After this he only remembered a feeling of suffocation, a gurgling spasm, and all was over until he awoke to an agonizing pain of reviving consciousness, in the arms of his boat's crew. Truly, one of the most remarkable escapes from death on record.

AN INGENUOUS modification of Ericsson's plan of employing hot air in the place of steam has been devised, with a view to meeting the requirements of an economical, safe and reliable engine for light work. The machine is described as comparatively noiseless, works very steadily, and is compact and simple in its construction. With the use of from fifty to sixty pounds of coal each day of from ten to twelve hours, with continuous work, this machine can be worked up to two horse power, and requires no more care or skill than an ordinary steam. There is no water, steam, nor water boring pipes nor boiler to care for, consequentially there is nothing to explode or endanger, and but little to get out of repair, beyond what attaches to an ordinary office stove. It occupies, too, but a small amount of space—three and one half by two and two-thirds feet on the floor and seven feet in height.

NEW GOODS.

We have just received a choice lot of HAMquires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect."—Hon. Alex. H. Stephens.

Governor of Alabama.
"Your Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am persuaded it is a valuable addition to the medical science."—Gov. J.
Gill Shorter, Ala.

"I have used the Regulator in my family for the past seventeen years. I can safely recommend it to the world as the best medicine I have ever used for that class of diseases it purports to cure."—H. F. Thigpen.

President of City Bank.
"Simmons' Liver Regulator has proved a good and efficacious medicine."—C. A. Nutting.

Druggist.
"We have been acquainted with Dr. Simmons' Liver Medicine for more than twenty years, and know it to be the best Liver Regu-
